

DRIVE Lite - historic and classic

Dear car club members

Welcome to the November edition of DRIVE Lite - Historic Vehicle Scheme (HVS) and Classic Vehicle Scheme (CVS). This edition will answer your questions about interstate vehicles and travelling outside NSW. We will also cover the requirements for name bars and using your vehicle for functions.

Can I travel interstate with my historic vehicle?

If you own a historic vehicle registered in NSW, you can temporarily use it in other states and territories. However, it's essential to adhere to the same conditions that apply to your vehicle's registration in NSW when driving interstate.

Conversely, if you are visiting from another state or territory and your vehicle is registered under a similar scheme in your home area, you are also allowed to use it temporarily in NSW. In this case, you will be required to observe the same conditions that apply in your home state or territory.

More information on the logbook can be found here (note – this fact sheet has changed in colour in line with our corporate brand).

What are the rules for name bars?

A name bar is a decorative feature that shows the vehicle make, club or other text of the owner's choice – see the example below. Name bars may be affixed to the number plate provided the positioning of the name bar does not obscure any part of the number plate.

Using your vehicle for functions

If your historic or classic vehicle is operating as a passenger transport service, for example weddings, graduations or other functions, you are required to:

1. Comply with the Point-to-Point Transport (Taxis and Hire Vehicles) legislation. A vehicle with 12 seats or less, including the driver, that is registered under the HVS and/or CVS can provide a passenger service for a fare if they are authorised under the point-to-point transport legislation. Read more about this service here.
2. Seek approval from the club and have the function details recorded in the organisation's official minutes or 'Day Book'.

Buses registered under the Historic Vehicle Scheme that seat more than 12 people (including the driver) must comply with the Transport Bus Operator Accreditation Scheme (BOAS) requirements if they are providing a passenger service for a fare. More information on BOAS can be found here.
